

E-BOOK CLUB KITS

Butter Honey Pig Bread by Francesca Ekwuyasi

SUMMARY

Twins Taiye and Kehinde used to be one zygote. These days, they barely speak to one another after being a torn apart by a terrible thing they never speak about. Leaving their mother Kambirinachi behind in Nigeria, they venture out into the world separately, to France, England, Canada and beyond. Sometimes they are on opposite sides of the world, other times they live only hours apart without ever seeing one another. But now they are both back home in Lagos, Kehinde bringing her husband Farouq, and Taiye trailing a long series of failed relationships with women who have changed her life for better and for worse. Back in their childhood home, the two sisters and their eccentric mother must reckon with the event that drove Taiye and Kehinde apart.

REVIEWS

Foreward Reviews

Publisher's Weekly

Hamilton Review of Books

AUTHOR INFO AND MORE

Author Bio

Interview with Pique

Ten Questions for Francesca Ekwuyasi