Extension Activities:

1. Duck had lots of ideas for things to do with Bear the first time he came over. Pick one that sounds fun to the whole family and do it together! Play cards, watch a movie, make smoothies, read books together... You can also each write down your own ideas of fun activities, put them in a jar, and pull one out the next time you need something to do.
2. Build a blanket fort somewhere in your house and camp out in it for a night. Make it cozy enough for a bear about to go into hibernation!
3. Read a bedtime story to your pet, sibling, teddy bear, doll, or other favorite toy or person. Then let them go to sleep!
4. The second time Duck came over, he wanted to make cookies. Baking is a great way to teach math skills and how to follow directions. Bake some cookies together as a family!
5. Discuss listening and friendship. How do you think it made Bear feel when Duck kept waking him up when he asked Duck to leave him alone? Was Duck being a good friend? What would you do if one of your friends wouldn't listen to what you told them? Do you tell your friends when they are bothering you or hope they figure it out by themselves? Do you listen when your friends ask you to stop doing something?
